

Not forgotten

Published 05/28/2011 12:00 AM

Updated 05/27/2011 11:52 PM

Tim Cook/The Day

Members of the U.S. Coast Guard International Ice Patrol reflect during a benediction as a wreath in memory of the World War II Greenland Patrol is laid during a ceremony at Bertholf Plaza at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy on Friday. The wreath will be dropped from a Coast Guard aircraft over the North Atlantic during an upcoming iceberg reconnaissance flight. The Greenland Patrol, formed in 1941, comprised Coast Guard, Army and Navy units that patrolled the North Atlantic.

Buy Photo

COMMENTS \(0\)

SHARE

PRINT

Members of the U.S. Coast Guard International Ice Patrol reflect during a benediction as a wreath in memory of the World War II Greenland Patrol is laid during a ceremony at Bertholf Plaza at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy on Friday. The wreath will be dropped from a Coast Guard aircraft over the North Atlantic during an upcoming iceberg reconnaissance flight. The Greenland Patrol, formed in 1941, comprised Coast Guard, Army and Navy units that patrolled the North Atlantic.

